FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

CME Outfitters Taking Continuing Medical Education to New Places

CME Outfitters is proud to offer top-rated continuing medical education opportunities to both domestic and international clinicians and strive to make a global impact on clinical behaviors.

BETHESDA, Maryland (December 6, 2016) – CME Outfitters (CMEO), a leading accredited provider in continuing medical education, proudly delivers a best-in-class CME experience to clinicians across the globe. From Hong Kong to Santiago, CMEO has worked diligently to provide continuing medical education opportunities to clinicians across 5 continents. CME Outfitters' latest international activity will include representatives from 14 Latin American countries with information being presented in both English and Spanish. CME Outfitters is dedicated to improving clinical behavior on a global front and anticipates expanding their continuing education initiatives to include clinicians from countries around the world.

In March of 2016, CMEO, along with The Neuroscience School of Advanced Studies hosted a clinical workshop at the Villa Finaly, on the hills overlooking Florence, Italy. The workshop, entitled Management of Treatment-Resistant Psychiatric Disorders brought together eight leading faculty to analyze the most recent evidence on management of patients with major psychiatric syndromes who do not respond to initial treatment. The program began with an overview of the entire workshop, followed by Charles B. Nemeroff, M.D., Ph.D. (Professor and Chairman, Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences, University of Miami) leading a state-of-the-art discussion of personalized medicine in psychiatry including genomics, inflammation, endocrine markers and brain imaging findings.

CME Outfitters has earned a solid reputation over the last fourteen years for developing and providing top-of-the-line continuing medical education experience. CME Outfitters has earned elite status for its accreditation practices and has expanded their offerings to include expert accreditation services for non-accredited organizations. CMEO has ventured into other therapeutic areas, including infectious disease, mood disorders, immunology, inflammatory diseases, oncology, and cardiology, and has been innovating at a breakneck pace as they work to conceive and build the most engaging adult learning systems available. CME Outfitters frequently updates the list of activities available for participation on its website, making it easy for clinicians to earn their CME credits on their own time and for little-to-no cost. For a complete list of currently available activities, visit www.cmeoutfitters.com.

On November 16-18, 2017, CME Outfitters will be hosting The 10th Annual Chair Summit: Master Class in Neuroscience Professional Development at the beautiful Hotel Monteleone in New Orleans, LA. Chair Summit brings leaders in the neurosciences from across the nation together to present the latest, cutting-edge clinical practices and emerging treatments for a variety of neurological disorders such as Parkinson's psychosis, Ketamine as treatment for depression, medical marijuana, and the risks of concussion in sports. In addition to plenary sessions, Chair Summit is known for its break-out small group sessions, in which attendees can interact directly with the Chairs and ask their most pressing clinical questions. Registration will be open in the new year.
