CME Outfitters Symposium to Share Latest Evidence in Stopping Disease Progression in Ulcerative Colitis

Experts to present latest evidence & new teaching tools for the management of UC in this engaging and dynamic live symposium

BETHESDA, Maryland (May 23, 2018) – CME Outfitters (CMEO), a leading accredited provider in continuing medical education, will host a live symposium, Stopping Ulcerative Colitis Progression in its Tract: Combining the Latest Evidence and Engaging Teaching Tools to Improve Patient Outcomes, Sunday, June 3, 2018 from 6:30 – 7:45AM ET in the Marriott Marquis Liberty Ballroom in Washington, DC, as part of a national conference.

Managing patients with ulcerative colitis (UC) is as complex as the disease itself. As science progresses the understanding of UC, strategies for its management have also progressed. Treatment goals have now shifted from resolution of symptoms to full control of the disease (clinical remission and mucosal healing), with a final aim of halting or preventing disease progression, surgery, and disability; and restoration of quality of life.

In this CME Outfitters symposium, expert faculty members Dr. David T. Rubin and Dr. Miguel Regueiro will provide clinicians with evidence-based direction to achieve sustained remission in UC through intervention of treat-to-target approaches as recommended by the AGA UC Care Pathway. In addition, they will integrate interactive infographics to provide a targeted review of the MOA of biologics and explain the impact of these biologics on disease progression.
